Difficult Hulls.
 While Isaac Hull, who commanded the Constitution in the war of 1812, is a great figure in our annals, his uncle, General William Hull, holds a very different position, as it was he who surrendered his force to the British, much to the disgust of his officers and men.
 Hull, who had fought under Washington, was in command of the army, and by his surrender we lost the ground from Detroit to Fort Dearborn, which is where Chicago now stands. Hull was sentenced to be executed, but was finally reprieved.

QUALITY MERCHANDISE

"BEST VALUES ALWAYS" AT THE RESPECTIVE PRICES
 Our policy is to give high quality on a close margin of profit.
 We're enabled to do this through the cash system by which we conduct our business—buy for cash and sell for cash—thereby doing away with a great many poor accounts.

Our new Spring stock awaiting your inspection, is the most complete in our history. We feel that our efforts this season to present the newest and best for the money, have been handsomely rewarded. All we ask is a comparison of quality, style and price, to see if we aren't entitled to our share of your business. The lines we are showing are in themselves the best evidence of the splendid display of new merchandise.

We can supply your wants in the following lines: Hosiery, Underwear, House Dresses, Aprons, Muslin Underwear, Black Petticoats, Handkerchiefs, Towels, Curtain goods, Boy's Blouse Waists, Knee Pants, Rompers, Suspenders, Trousers, Dress Shirts or Gloves, Neckwear, Men's Hats, Caps, Overall, Jackets, Traveling Bags, Suit
 Cases, Toilet Soap, Notions and Dinnerware.

Special sale on the following goods: Six dozen Ladies' Waists, white and also fancy stripes in dainty combinations. $1.25 and $1.00
 Waists on sale at 79c, 59c and 50c Waists on sale at 39c.
 Six dozen Princess Slips and Combination Suits, dainty embroidery trimmings, $1.25 and $1.00 values at 79c, 75c quality at

MILK PRODUCERS SET PRICES FOR SUMMER

LOCAL ASSOCIATION AS MEMBER OF CHICAGO BODY, ACCEPTS
 PRICE FOR SUMMER—AV-ERAGE IS $2.12 PER 100.

250 ATTEND MEETING

Association Wants Every Producer
 Within Ten Miles of Janesville
 As Member.

Month—	100 lbs.	Can
April	$2.40	$1.90
May	2.00	1.60
June	1.60	1.30
July	2.32	1.88
August	2.30	1.80
September	2.30	1.80

These figures set by the Chicago
 Milk Producers' association at a price meeting held recently, were accepted by the local organization which is a member of the greater Chicago association. Hugh Hinchman, an officer of the local body, attended the price convention as Janesville's representative. He declared at a meeting of the local producers, held yesterday at the city hall, that the average price of $2.12 was small compared to many of the prices set, which were suggested as high as $2.40. Janesville, with a few others, kept the price down to $2.12 by holding out for $2.00 milk.
 The monthly scale of prices was determined upon by an executive board of the association, figuring expenses and production at the various periods.

There were about two hundred and fifty farmers at the association meeting yesterday afternoon, and president of the local body, who joined for the new year. The number and enthusiasm of the audience was in striking contrast to the first meeting held last fall, at which but a few dealers and where there was little of the confident interest that was displayed yesterday. Though the meeting was called largely for the purpose of investigating the milk situation, a number of interesting talks on the milk situation were made by various members of the organization and others.

Despite the large number who joined yesterday, the officers feel that there is not a farmer within ten miles of Janesville who milks one cow or owns ten acres of land who has not joined the association and who therefore should not join. In order to secure more definite information of these recalcitrant farmers, John L.
 Williams, who represents the association, has been appointed. The motion was carried by a unanimous vote, and accordingly on the first day of April a committee of the association will visit each of the points of milk delivery in this city, and there will secure the names of all producers who are not members of the association, will ascertain whether they are tenants and if so, the name of the landlord, and if possible the reason for not joining the association. These names will then be reported and more definite steps will be taken to bring them into the association.

The feeling in favor of the organization was great. Members felt that it was unfair for producers to reap all the benefits of the association in the matter of price without doing anything for its protection. Mr. Cronin of the Cronin Milk company, declared that after the new prices had gone into effect he would accept none but association milk. This was greeted by cheers from the producers. Mr.
 Marsh of the Boyer company, who presided, said that all his patrons join the association. Mr. Marsh was tendered a vote of thanks. Amid great enthusiasm, Frank A. Taylor, county income tax assessor, said that he believed the Milk Producers' association was one of the finest things that has happened to Janesville. W. O. Austin, president of the association, declared that he felt confident that every dealer in the city realized the value of the association and would willingly join were they asked. However, these are not the men we want," he said.
 "The farmers are the ones that benefit more directly and the farmers are the ones that should join first."

A letter from the Leaf River Creamery company, which operates the local factor for the manufacture of Greek cheese, stated that they were ready to accept 40,000 pounds of milk a day during the summer, and would gladly pay the association prices.
 "That means," put into circulation in this city during the next six months, over $500 a day. If the dealers want more milk, we want to get it for them, provided they will pay the price. It is our desire to build up this community into one of the greatest dairies in the state."
 "This time is coming," said Mr. Austin, "when the non-member will not stand a chance. At Chicago hundreds of producers voted in favor of a rule preventing a member from dumping milk into a vat where an outsider put his milk. Perhaps we are not ready for anything as drastic as that in this city, but that time is coming. The farmers are sick of taking what they can get for their produce. Definite prices are commanded by every other form of producer, organization means we can do the same. Cost of production has increased so tremendously that milk must go up. At the old prices paid producers a dairy farmer can scarcely realize five per cent on his investment.

 The new prices agreed upon, with the cheese factory asking for 40,000 pounds of milk a day, with Janesville retailers taking between fifty and seventy-five thousand pounds, and with Chicago markets looking for upwards of 70,000 pounds, the association feels that with a definite membership policy outlined, its success in the future is assured.

WILLIAM HEMMING L. O. O. M. DICTATOR

He and Other Officers for Ensuing Year Are Chosen Last Night—
 Installed in April.

William Hemming was selected as dictator for the coming year by members of Janesville Lodge No. 137. They at Order of Moose at their annual election of officers last night. Robert S.
 Dalley was chosen as vice-dictator;
 Harry Rudd, president; Frank Koeber, treasurer; Peter Schaefer, inner guard, and William Taylor, trustee for three years.
 Three officers have terms which will not expire until the next year.
 They are Secretary Charles C. Osmani, two years; Trustee Charles Sykes, one year; Trustee Floyd B. Adams, two years and Past Dictator Ed. C. Baumann, one year.

 installed in their chairs the first meeting in April, Thursday, the 6th.

SOUTH JANESVILLE CASE UP SATURDAY

Judge Grimm Will Hear Arguments on Legality of Statute Upon Which State Brings Action.

Arguments on the constitutionality of the statute under which District Attorney Dunwiddie has brought the action for an injunction against Frank Williams, proprietor of the Northwestern Hotel at South Janesville, who is charged in the complaint with conducting a public nuisance, will be heard Saturday morning by Judge Grimm in circuit court. Attorney Williams, who represents the defendant, will contend that the action is of a quasi criminal nature and that if successful will deprive the defendant of property without the recourse of a trial by jury. District Attorney Dunwiddie is prepared to argue the states contention. Mr. Dunwiddie is asking for a temporary injunction against Williams until such time as the action for the abatement of the alleged nuisance can be tried before the court.

POULTRY ASSOCIATION TO MEET AT SADDLER'S TONIGHT

Directors of the Poultry association have called a meeting for tonight at eight o'clock at Saddle's harness shop on Court street. At this time judges for the 1917 show, definite dates for this event and other plans for the future will be decided upon.
 Interest in the new association is growing rapidly. The success of the recent show when about a thousand birds were displayed, brought in many new members. Especially among the country breeders has the interest increased. Farmers who have not realized the value of pure breeds and adequate care, and have become active boosters for the association.

Motorcycle Riders of Janesville Noticing important meeting of Janesville Federation of Motorcyclists will be held Sunday, March 11, 1917. At 108 North First street, near fire station No. 2. If interested please be present. Big entertainment after meeting. C. Barriage, president; E.
 Fueter, secretary.

HERE'S A CHANCE.

There has been so much talk of reducing the U. S. L. by establishing small gardens on vacant lots that it is interesting to note that the mayor of Appleton has offered several large tracts of land that he owns in his home city for the use of families who desire to utilize it as garden plots and other prominent citizens have followed suit and donated the use of land they own that may be used in the same way.

By these means it is believed that many a family where the cost of food is a serious question, can be materially aided without injury to their pride and also with most advantageous results to the entire community. In Janesville there are many tracts owned by individuals that might be utilized in the same way, should the example be set, and it looks like an opportunity for some of the large individual property-owners to show their public spirit without any real cost to themselves.

Oshkosh is even going still further. They intend to establish a municipal coal yard for the use of the people. The report that coal is to remain at a high price throughout the year, that a shortage is possible, and the prices at the pit are anywhere from fifty to a hundred per cent. higher than a year ago, means untold suffering next winter unless some provision is made in advance.

These two suggestions—the donating of land for gardens and the establishment of a municipal coal and fuel yard, are worthy of consideration and the question is brought to the attention of the public the quicker some definite action can be obtained. The Gazette would be glad to hear suggestions on both questions and the returns of the paper are open to persons desiring to write on the subject.

If Appleton property-owners can donate the use of vacant lots and Oshkosh municipal authorities can arrange for a municipal coal and fuel yard, it would appear strange that Janesville can not do something along the same line, and it would be an interesting experiment at least to attempt it.

STATE VS. NATION.

Go where you will, you can not fail to hear words of condemnation for the state of Wisconsin because of the action of its republican United States senator at the critical time during the closing hours of congress. No matter if twelve senators did participate in the filibuster, the whole credit for the situation is laid at the doors of La Follette. "Gum Show Bill" Stone of Missouri played an important part in the affair, but Wisconsin is given credit for having engineered the whole business and it is the state versus the nation.

Orskov looks to recall its representative who aided and abetted the blockade of congressional wishes, but the Wisconsin legislature has seen fit to have the resolution of endorsement of the state's representative, both congressmen and senators, put over until next week. Orskov looks to recall its representative who aided and abetted the blockade of congressional wishes, but the Wisconsin legislature has seen fit to have the resolution of endorsement of the state's representative, both congressmen and senators, put over until next week.

However, the state has survived many years of mistakes by its chosen son who manages to pull the wool over the eyes of the farmers, and even of his closest adherents when needed to secure re-election. Then his state and their wishes and desires become the smallest part of his thoughts. He is bigger than the constituency that elected him and he votes as he sees fit, regardless of protest or suggestions.

Apparently there is no remedy for this condition although it is unfortunate that the state is placed in such an unpleasant position and held up to the ridicule and scorn of the nation as a whole. The best that can be done is to have the legislature pass its resolution which would set the state right in the eyes of the public without further delay. It is up to the legislature to do this, and the individual members should be urged to stand firm when the time comes and not be swayed by partisan politics which should have no place when state honor is concerned.

PRODUCER AND PUBLIC.

On the face of it, a man has a right to sell his product for any old price that he can get. But there are limitations in reason and justice. If a man came to an innkeeper's door weary and exhausted on a cold winter night, the innkeeper might say that he had a right to charge him any price he wanted. He might say that the man could better afford to pay $30 for his lodging than risk his life and health in the storm.

But any innkeeper who took advantage of human suffering to charge exorbitantly would be called rapacious. Lawyers would probably say that he could be expelled as the keeper of a public house, to take the man in and give him accommodation at a decent price.

The position of the food producer in this time of food shortage is the same, morally, if not legally. The people are suffering for lack of certain food products. Those who have these products are enriching themselves. Can any limit be placed on his grasping spirit? Vices are always found in which to find great abuses. Food speculation is a new evil with which our people have to contend, and they will not be content in doing it. In their anger they may go to the other extreme, and hit a blow at business interests that may do lasting hurt. Food speculators should have a cure how they provoke the consuming public into a state of wrath, leading to hasty and perhaps injudicious action.

A dealer may have the legal right to ask an unreasonable price. If so, it seems inevitable that laws should be changed. If they want to avoid the vexatious interference of government, which business interests all dread, let the food speculator beware how like the inn-keeper he turns the public away in time of exigency. People who want to keep friends and remain in business at the old stand, would better protect their customers and the public.

Having figured out on paper how they can save $25 a year, many people are now prepared to take advantage of their resolute economy and spend $500 a year on an automobile.

The people of the United States would almost be willing to go without potatoes for six months, if all those helping hand speculators could rot on their hands.

Perhaps the people who really started some of these food riots were not so much hungry themselves as desirous of seeing other people hungry.

There is a feeling also among some that "Go to Church" Sunday is a kind of Pay-up week when you can keep God satisfied for one more year.

Our people don't worry much about lives being lost, but wait until some one finds out that he has lost a dollar by the way the war is going.

Congress will not doubt authorize the president to point the horse pistol at Germany any time he gets good and ready.

Of 100,000 visitors in Washington for inauguration probably not more than 90,000 of them are looking for office.

Still another kind of food riot occurs when the church announces a fifty cent supper for fifteen cents.

Treaties nowadays are the agreements you expect to keep with nations having a stronger military force.

It is perhaps natural that the bone dry law should make many people shiver to the marrow.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

ROY K. MOULTON

Come let us pause and give acclaim To one we all adore. To what, O, the Modern Miss! (She has been sung, of course, ever since this)

But she can stand some more!) Whenever lived so fair a thing, So full of life and tricks? She goes to dances and to school, She sings and plays (and as a rule, She drives a superbly!)

In riffs days of cavaliers, Of odds and powdered curls, The maidens then were very fair, But cheeks, they'd very not compare With lovely Modern Girls.

The many maids of other days, Of courtly lands and climes, Have been perhaps most fair to see And poets finer far than we Have sung them in their rhymes.

They've sung them in their rhymes And we Would merely add but this: The latest song of other days Today is far too faint to rise To give the Modern Miss!

TODAY'S SNEER. Public opinion is half hearsay. And half-baked.

The Neck. In these days of educational advantages every child is familiar with the neck and its uses. If the wishes of the average small boy were consulted the neck would not grow on him till he was old enough to say when he cleaned his washing neatly. The neck is tender in youth and extremely sensitive to soap or a wash rag. It is not to be inferred that people who are willing to wash their necks for the neck of a woman and picked over. But you may see something you like. As advertised, 2 for 3c.

What change takes place when water turns to ice? Shall we wrap it up? If the goat hasn't any nose how does he smell? Terrible. Something suitable for a dinner party. (Man: (to hotel clerk) How much are your rooms? Clerk: Two dollars up to twelve. Man: How much are they up to half-past nine. Previous to this. True is the last one we have of these.

Another man: (to another hotel clerk) Give me a room and a bath. Hotel Clerk: I can give you a room but I haven't time to give you a bath.

Pet Pests. I hate the sight of Bertie Rice. He tries to be too awfully nice.

The silly ass he likes to bow. To say, "Oh, dear!" and "Really now!"

I'll look him with that fist of mine. If you'll agree to pay the fine.

That afternoon the Rev. D. D. Fiddle, D.D., had his wife and child, Mr. and Mrs. Astor and Mrs. Rocker, coming to be quietly married, and the Rev. Fiddle felt the large fee he would surely receive merited a little something in return.

The wealthy young couple arrived punctually, and the Rev. Fiddle tied the knot so neatly and daintily that they scarcely felt it. The groom took a flat package from his pocket.

"A little remembrance," he said sweetly.

As soon as they had gone, the Rev. Fiddle opened the package.

"A pair of gloves!" he cried, and buried them into his scrap basket.

Four years later, when his wife went to empty the basket, she discovered the gloves. More than that, she discovered a twelve dollar bill stuffed in each thumb and a twenty-three dollar bill in each finger tip—$203 altogether.

"Mercy!" said the Rev. Fiddle, and in his mortification he fell down stairs so hard he fractured his hypophyseus. The $203 was just exactly sufficient to pay the doctor bill and purchase a nice pair of catwood crutches, which so pleased and impressed the Rev. Fiddle that he wore an optimistic smile all the rest of his life, except when he was trying to tie a full dress tie.

ST. MARY FIVE LEADS IN FIRST DIVISION

Take Leadership From St. Patrick's and Will Meet Methodists for Church League Title.

St. Patrick's church basketball team, champions of the 1916 church league, fell to the discard at the high school auditorium yesterday afternoon and were easily pushed from a tie which has featured the first division leadership when the St. Mary's five trounced them by an 11 to 0 score. The defeat was the worst administered the Irish quintet in two years.

As it now stands the St. Mary's team will meet the Methodists, runners up in the second division of the league, for the league championship a week from tonight.

In the other game yesterday afternoon, that to settle the matter of tie between the Congregationalists and the Presbyterians, in the same division, the latter nosed out by a two point victory, the final score being 12 to 10.

Tonight the Baptists and the Irish five will clash to settle the question as to who will occupy third place. The Congregational and English Lutheran teams will also play.

STATE W. C. T. U. PRESIDENT TALKS TO SCHOOL CHILDREN

Mrs. Annie W. Warren of Stoughton state vice president of the Wisconsin W. C. T. U., this morning addressed a most enthusiastic audience composed of the children of the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grades of the Jefferson school.

These boys and girls were keenly awake to the temperance question before the city at this time, and heartily applauded the short talk on "Alcohol and Its Many Evil Effects." At the close Mrs. Warren taught them the short, catchy couplet which was instantly taken up by the children: "I can't vote, neither can na; If Janesville goes wet, lay it to na."

UNCLE SAM HUNTS MILITIAMEN JOBS

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Washington, March 9.—Uncle Sam's nation-wide employment service, ever since the troops began to filter back from the border, has scoured the land, job-hunting for the militiamen who quit their places to go south.

Militia organizations and their friends have assisted, the press has done its bit, and the response from the employing public, employment officials declare, has been unprecedented.

Employment offices at Denver, Kansas City, Minneapolis, Boston, New Orleans and Chicago, reported success in the job-hunting campaign. Large employers of labor as well as the private business man are reported enthusiastically co-operating in the work of providing for the jobless warriors.

As fast as the positions come into the employment offices the organizations in the various districts

SNEAK THIEVES STEAL
AUTOMOBILE ACCESSORIES

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Edgerton, March 8.—Some time during the past month, sneak thieves on the highway, of W. H. Tyler and stole the valuable parts of his automobile that was stored in the building. Mr. and Mrs. Tyler have been making their home at the hotel during the winter and had not only secured the car but had had the door locked. The thieves evidently knew the front valuable parts of the car, as they took in the electrical appliances from the car. Fortunately Mr. Tyler has the numbers of the parts taken and all the garages have been notified of the numbers on the stolen car. A watch and a careful watch will be kept in the car and the missing parts.

Several people drove to Whitewater last evening to witness the basketball tournament in which Edgerton is represented.

Mrs. W. P. Guttery was a Chicago passenger last evening.

The Mandolin club gives a dancing party this evening at the T. R. hall. The party invitations were issued and a good time is anticipated.

EVANSVILLE MAN DESCRIBES
PRESIDENT'S INAUGURATION

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Evansville, March 9.—W. W. Gillies returned Wednesday evening from a very pleasant trip to Florida where he has been sojourning for the past month. He came home via Washington, D. C. to be present at the inauguration. To quote Mr. Gillies, "All roads lead to Washington just previous to March fifth. The weather for two or three days before was cold and rainy. But on Monday morning about nine o'clock, it cleared and the sun came out bright and beautiful. And with it came the crowds. For hours before the ceremony the huge throngs were gathering in readiness for the event which was scheduled for twelve noon. But it was really 12:30 before it actually took place. I was very fortunate to get a fine place of observation within a few feet of the platform where Woodrow Wilson for the second time was made President of the United States and could see and hear very distinctly. Could hear his inaugural speech very plainly. After the ceremony the grand parade which took four hours in passing in review down Pennsylvania avenue. On the whole it was a very inspiring, impressive ceremonial."

News Notes from Movieland

BY DAISY DEAN

That the obtaining of the highest type of screen story is still the greatest problem which the motion picture producer faces, is the opinion of Jesse L. Lasky, president of the company which bears his name.

"Producers as a whole have made wonderful progress in the technical phases of production," says Mr. Lasky, "but the greatest problem is procuring the highest type of screen story. By that I mean not the adapted material from books or plays, but plots which are conceived directly for the screen."

"I firmly believe that the future of the motion picture depends upon those who will write for it rather than upon any other single factor."

MYERS THEATRE.

Fredrik the Great is Great. Fredrik the Great, who comes to Myers March 9 and 10, fairly outdoes any wizard within memory. Keller and the Great Herman not excepted. Even ex-cells that find in one of the comic opera whose name was "John Wellington Wells," a dealer in magical spells, and with his company of ten persons, including nimble helpers, an odd comedy of the scale on which it is staged, every scene being notable, either for its beauty or its novelty. It faithfully reproduces the story by Robert Hichens as in his book and is dramatized by himself. It is full of action from start to finish, flying from climax to climax, yet it carries that impression of vast solitude and the spell of the desert, that are prominent in the book, and the very characters seem things apart from real life. The three important roles—"Boris," the young monk; "Dominic," whom he marries; and "Count Antioch," the despot, are in the hands of Mr. William Jeffrey, Miss Sarah Truax and Mr. Howard Gould, respectively; and are portrayed so forcefully that one will imagine all three walking directly out of the novel itself.

Others in the company of over one hundred include Mr. Albert Andrus, Mr. Thaddeus Gray, Mr. James Mason, Mr. Leo de Valery, Miss Pearl Gray and the Abbott Family of five, together with a host of Arabs, Moors, Armenians, French and native soldiers, and many camels, horses, monkeys, goats, etc., that all lend a finishing touch to this stupendous triumph of the stage of today.

Clifford Hipple comes to the Myers Sunday, March 11, in an Irish play of the alluring title "Dream Girl O' Mine"—to be explicit—is a dramatic play of the highest type of comedy of laughter and song. A comedy, pure, clean and high class, yet the moving cause of real mirth. It could not be Irish without the suggestion of a fight, and these are present as usual, but are lost sight of in the range of complication in which we set four young lovers apparently hopelessly entangled. The scenes are laid in Ireland a hundred years ago, each scene and situation giving rise to laughter. Bright and witty in its lines, clever and effective in its character drawing, it should offer one of the most enjoyable evenings of current stage amusement. Mr. Hipple is a young polished actor who not only wins his audience by his forceful portrayal of character, but sings several typical Irish songs with telling effect. Among them are "I Never Met a Girl Like You," "She's My Dream Girl," "The Little Duden," and an "Irish Lullaby" a carload of special scenery is carried for the production.

MYERS THEATRE.
Gallantry and heroism, tragedy and comedy, humor and pathos, triumph and disaster—all this and much more illumine from start to finish every foot of the prodigious filmization of Sir Douglas Mawson's expedition into the heart of the Antarctic which Lyman H. Howe will present at the Myers theatre on Monday and Tuesday, March 12 and 13, matinee and night. The humor is all the more aptly and refreshingly because it is so natural. Although the comedians are birds and animals, they are so humanly amusing in every action that laughter is simply irresistible.

Some of the noblest scenery in America will also be shown during a ride through Yosemite National Park. An abundance of memorable views of jagged peaks, incomparable vistas of nature and rivers, strolling majestically from dizzy heights. Then, too, a rich measure of merriment and humor are provided by the quaint antics and rollicking humor of entirely new and original animated cartoons.

Smith—Goldmore is a very generous old fellow. Do you know, he's always helping somebody out. Jones (sighs)—Yes, I know. I was down to see his daughter the other night, and he helped me out too.

Gallantry and heroism, tragedy and comedy, humor and pathos, triumph and disaster—all this and much more illumine from start to finish every foot of the prodigious filmization of Sir Douglas Mawson's expedition into the heart of the Antarctic which Lyman H. Howe will present at the Myers theatre on Monday and Tuesday, March 12 and 13, matinee and night. The humor is all the more aptly and refreshingly because it is so natural. Although the comedians are birds and animals, they are so humanly amusing in every action that laughter is simply irresistible.

Some of the noblest scenery in America will also be shown during a ride through Yosemite National Park. An abundance of memorable views of jagged peaks, incomparable vistas of nature and rivers, strolling majestically from dizzy heights. Then, too, a rich measure of merriment and humor are provided by the quaint antics and rollicking humor of entirely new and original animated cartoons.

Smith—Goldmore is a very generous old fellow. Do you know, he's always helping somebody out. Jones (sighs)—Yes, I know. I was down to see his daughter the other night, and he helped me out too.

MYERS THEATRE.

"The Garden of Allah."

In this day of so many "second" companies touring the country, it will be a welcome relief for theatregoers of this city to learn that the magnificent production of "The Garden of Allah," which will come to the Myers theatre March 24, matinee and night, is the only and original organization before the public today and will be presented in its entirety just as it was seen at the Century theatre, New York City, for a solid year.

"The Garden of Allah" as a play, but the one that stands out most vividly and will be longest remembered is the magnitude of the scale on which it is staged, every scene being notable, either for its beauty or its novelty.

It faithfully reproduces the story by Robert Hichens as in his book and is dramatized by himself. It is full of action from start to finish, flying from climax to climax, yet it carries that impression of vast solitude and the spell of the desert, that are prominent in the book, and the very characters seem things apart from real life.

The three important roles—"Boris," the young monk; "Dominic," whom he marries; and "Count Antioch," the despot, are in the hands of Mr. William Jeffrey, Miss Sarah Truax and Mr. Howard Gould, respectively; and are portrayed so forcefully that one will imagine all three walking directly out of the novel itself.

Others in the company of over one hundred include Mr. Albert Andrus, Mr. Thaddeus Gray, Mr. James Mason, Mr. Leo de Valery, Miss Pearl Gray and the Abbott Family of five, together with a host of Arabs, Moors, Armenians, French and native soldiers, and many camels, horses, monkeys, goats, etc., that all lend a finishing touch to this stupendous triumph of the stage of today.

Smith—Goldmore is a very generous old fellow. Do you know, he's always helping somebody out. Jones (sighs)—Yes, I know. I was down to see his daughter the other night, and he helped me out too.

Heart and Home Problems

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I have been keeping steady company with a young man for about a year. He is twenty-one and I am twenty. This young man lives out of town and I get a chance to see him only once a week. About three months ago his mother died and he has been coming to spend Sunday with me. I went to see them and had a lovely time. Then at Christmas his mother invited me to stay a week with them. Of course I went. Did I do right? (2) At times this young man says he loves me and is very nice to me. Then sometimes he acts distant. I really can't understand him. I am a motherless girl. Please give me some advice. Yours me? I love him dearly and I cannot give him up.

FORGET-AID-NOT.
Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Since the mother invited you to stay a week with them, you are probably doing. He may be moody. You don't worry a little about her love. If you are indifferent too, he won't like it.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been out with a girl several times and I like her. She says she doesn't believe in kissing, but if I keep trying she will usually kiss me and act as if she liked it. What is your opinion of a girl like this one? Is she "silly" or what? P. R. D.

The girl has not much will power. She knows what is right, but she is not strong enough to resist temptation. You should help her and not insist. She is not teasing you.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: If a boy or girl is invited to a party or a wedding would it be proper for either one to invite the other, if they have been going together steady for a long time? A. B. C.

Unless the hostess tells the one she has invited to bring someone else, the person invited should not take the liberty. If the invitation says to bring someone else it is all right for either the boy or girl to take whom he or she pleases.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am only a teen years old, and yet I have been in love with a young man two years. He has never encouraged me in any way. In fact I see him very seldom and then he does not always speak. I don't know how I ever happened to fall in love with him. I have tried my best to forget him, but I cannot. My love is not passionate, but patient and enduring. Is it possible that this is real love? (2) Is it proper to let a man put his arms around you if you do not let him kiss you? (3) If a man takes you to a dance is it proper to dance with other men there when you do not know? The girls all do it.

(4) Should a girl call a man by his first name if she has been with him several times, even if he is older than she? (5) Your love is very natural for a girl of your age. I think you are really in love with an ideal. Some day you will no longer love this boy. You will fall out of love as unconsciously as you fell in, because you find new interests and will care for other men who will be interested in you.

(6) No. (7) A girl should not dance with a boy unless she has been introduced to him. (8) It is best for the girl to wait until the boy calls her by her first name. If she requests that she call him by his first name.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) How can you make the boy notice you? (2) How can you tell when a boy loves you? (3) Are boys and girls cheapened by spooning? (4) If you are not conspicuous they will notice you sooner than if you try to attract their attention. Dress as well as you can. Be pleasant, be interesting, but don't be silly.

(5) If they love you deeply they will tell you. You must be sure that they like you if they call on you and take you places.

(6) I think they are.

"Poor soul!"
"Yes, poor indeed."

Household Hints

GOOD DESSERTS:
Hungarian Apfel Strudel—Mix one pound sifted flour with pinch of salt, one pint warm water and one egg to stiff dough. Beat mixture hard until it bubbles and comes off the fingers. Form a ball, put in oil floured board, cover with warm bowl and let stand an hour in warm place.

No prepare the filling: Half cup sugar, one-half cup raisins, one-fourth pound sweet chopped almonds, one-half teaspoon cinnamon and five or six apples. Peel, core and slice apples very thin. Cover table with clean table cloth, sprinkle lightly with flour. Put dough in center of table and stretch it out carefully. Lay covers with white table—it will be thin as paper cut off the thick ends. Spread with melted butter, lay the mixed filling on in an even layer, lift the cloth at one end, roll carefully. Place well-greased pan, and leave thirty to forty minutes in moderate oven. Cut the baker strudel in pieces, sprinkle with powdered sugar. Serve hot. Fruit is inexpensive and makes a most delicious dessert.

Fruit Dumplings—Any kind of fruit will do, home-canned is best. One cup fruit, two cups juice, sugar to taste.

Dumplings—One cup flour, one scant teaspoon baking powder, one tablespoon sugar, pinch salt, enough milk to moisten (not too stiff). Put fruit on to cook; when boiling, drop in dumplings and steam twenty minutes.

Will serve six persons.
Pudding—Canned peaches, or sliced apples are the nicest for this, though any fruit may be used. Cover bottom of pudding pan with one sweetened fruit, make one cup milk, one cup milk, three tablespoons sweetened butter, one and one-half teaspoons baking powder, flour enough to make rather stiff batter. Pour over fruit and bake.

THE TABLE.
Aunt Martha's Doughnuts—These will keep a month and not get hard like most doughnuts do. One pint milk, one and one-half cups sugar, two eggs, one teaspoon soda dissolved in one tablespoon boiling water, two teaspoons cream, one-half cup sifted flour, one-half cup salt, enough flour to make dough to roll. Fry in deep fat and roll in sugar.

Bran Bread—Mix together one cup white flour, one cup Graham flour and one cup bran; in this mix one cup seeded raisins and half cup (or more) dates cut in small pieces; add one egg well beaten, half teaspoon salt, half cup molasses, one cup milk. Mix well, add one teaspoon soda (level) dissolved in one-fourth cup hot water, mix lightly and pour while foaming into tins. Bake slowly about three-fourths hour.

Lancashire Tea Cakes—One and half pounds flour, quarter pound butter, pint new milk, half ounce yeast, half pound currants, two ounces candied lemon, two eggs, two tablespoons sugar, a little grated nutmeg. Put sugar and currants with flour; melt butter in milk (scalded) and when cool enough mix with the well beaten eggs and yeast. Add dry ingredients, beating all well; set away to rise again to double its bulk. Bake in moderately hot oven. These are delicious when fresh and good cold and toasty the second day.

Baked Stuffed Onions—Peel onions and scoop out centers with apple corer, reserving the bits for seasoning some other dish. Place sausage meat in cavities and set on to boil in steamer to cook until almost tender, then sprinkle over sufficient fine bread crumbs to cover, after pouring over a cream sauce. Bake until tender in hot oven. The sausage may be replaced with chopped nutmeats mixed with fine bread crumbs and seasoned with butter, pepper and salt.

Coffee Tapioca Pudding—Soak two tablespoons tapioca over night. In the morning add three cups coffee. Cook until thick. Add half cup sugar, pinch of salt. Serve with lemon butter sauce. Will serve five.

MACARONI AND CHEESE.
Purchase one pound macaroni and boil it for fifteen minutes in salt water and drain with cold water. Fry it in hot butter or lard mixed with one-fourth pound cheese cut in small pieces and brown. Drain if preferred. It can be baked in a hot oven until brown. Serve.

MISS VIOLET ERSKINE, BRITISH DIPLOMAT, TO WED IN WASHINGTON
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Washington D. C., March 9.—The world has sat up and took notice that Miss Violet Erskine of London, appointed secretary to the British embassy here. It was the first official appearance of a woman in the diplomatic circles of the world. Early next month it is rumored that she will marry a young man, a great favorite with Sir Cecil and Lady Spring-Rice. She won her appointment through her exceptional knowledge of customs and American institutions.

The wedding, it is presumed, will take place at the embassy. The original plan was for a wedding trip to England, but whether or not this will be taken is not known at this time.

"SAVE THE BABIES."
These are authentic quotations from the pamphlet on babies by Dr. J. Emmett Holt of Columbia and Dr. Henry L. K. Shaw of Union University.

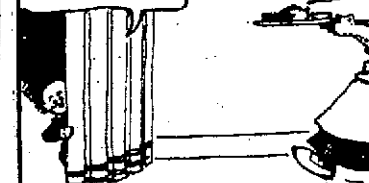

Supper for a child two to three years old should be served at 5:30 p. m. It should consist of a well cooked cereal, or bread and milk, or bread and butter and cocoa, and stewed fruit or apples. Give him also a glass of warmed milk. Do not give the child anything to eat between meals. Be sure that he has several drinks of water during the day.

TELLS WEATHER BY SQUIRREL BAROMETER; NOT NUTTY
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Columbus, O., March 9.—Gov. Cox's secretary, Charles E. Morris, foretells the weather every day by his squirrel barometer, and he isn't nutty either. He says if he sees the busy little creature go up to the trees when he goes to work in the morning he looks out for a storm next day, but if it's to be fair weather the squirrels stay down on the ground.

FLOWERS FOR EVERY HOME.

In a unique Boston school, founded to teach the science of homemaking, where the girls put their theories into practice in houses run by themselves, one of the tasks allotted is to keep flowers in the house on an allowance of fifty cents a week.

They manage this in various ways. One girl bought bulbs. Fifty cents buys ten narcissus bulbs, these will bloom before the winter is over and the blossoming lasts ten days. Decorating a House With Six Jonquils. Another girl whose team of office as the family florist comes in jonquils, bought half a dozen jonquils twice a week. Four of these with the green blades that come with them were put in flower holder and arranged in a vase, and made a beautiful decoration for the dark dining table. The other two were placed in one flower vase on the living room mantel.

The cleverest scheme was devised by a girl who was acquainted with the woods in winter. Two weeks before her term of office she went out to the woods and came home with her arms full of what the other girls called "bare twigs." When her term came to decorate she had two big brown vases full of maples and wild roses, and dogwood just breaking into blossom. She had put the bare twigs

ASTHMA

Many theories have prevailed at different times in the study of asthma. Recently, of course, was blamed, as it has been blamed for most diseases we have, not understood. "Nervous," "chronic," "spasmodic" and "idiopathic" are adjectives applied to asthma in a groping to define its nature. A few years ago reflex action came from the nasal sinuses, and a few remarkable cures were produced by the removal of spurs on the nasal septum or hypertrophied (thickened) turbinate bodies, but more operations failed to give any relief because the "reflex" theory was wrong after all.

The present view is that asthma—and not chronic bronchitis, or the shortness of breath from heart disease or from kidney disease, or emphysema—is produced by a peculiar condition known as anaphylaxis, or protein sensitization. This is most frequent in the case of hay fever, which is an expression of sensitization to the protein of some variety of pollen; and also in the case of hives, which is usually a sensitization of some food protein like shell-fish, cork, or sawdust and the like.

It is possible now to apply endermic tests and determine what particular type of food protein may be responsible for sensitization in an individual case.

Other sources of protein sensitization are responsible for many cases of asthma, however. The presence of a focus of infection anywhere in the body—in the nasal sinuses, in tonsils, about the roots of the teeth, in the throat in men and women, even a simple bronchitis, may serve as the source of the asthmatic attacks.

Some individuals are sensitive to the protein of cats and other animals. Even sleeping on a pillow of goose feathers has been found to be a cause in some cases.

When chronic bronchitis, with more or less expectoration, accompanies genuine asthma and continues between the irregular asthmatic attacks, the isolation of the bacteria in the sputum and the prolonged administration of a vaccine made therefrom, is an essential adjunct to any treatment, and sometimes the only way to effect a cure.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
I have a habit of breathing through my mouth at night. I control it all right in the daytime, but cannot do so at night. I wake with a dry, inflamed throat and lips every morning. Had my tonsils and adenoids removed last winter. Is there any way you can suggest to overcome the difficulty? L. V. T.

Answer—Several. First, the tubinate or spongy bodies of the nasal passage normally relax in sleep; this tends to narrow or close the passage, and make mouth breathing necessary. The condition is prolonged in your case, perhaps by prolonged neglect of tonsils and adenoids. Have a few topical applications to the spongy bodies, to improve their tone and prevent excessive relaxation in sleep.

Second, when you are in bed, never warm all, which delays and depresses. You should wear either a chin strap to hold the jaws closed, or cross-cross strips of adhesive plaster to keep the lips together in sleep.

The Folicular Versus the Suppurative Pleurisy. Please explain what is the difference between Folicular tonsillitis and Quinsy. (D. S.)
Answer—Folicular tonsillitis is the common acute inflammation of the tonsils, characterized by the presence of white spots on the tonsils, and a cheesy mass here and there over the surface of the tonsils—in the follicles or openings. Quinsy is any tonsillitis accompanied by pus formation, the pus usually pointing in the soft palate between the tonsil and the uvula (that little finger-like tip of the soft palate in the median line of the throat).

THE HIGHFLIERS

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

It is Agreed That Not Mrs. Jaynes's Ignorance but Her Lack of Character Is the Secret of Her Unpopularity.

"Oh Marjory, I was the cause of a terrible scene between Clyde's father and mother yesterday," said Mollie Jaynes. The two friends were seated by the open window. The first warm days of spring had come.

"You the cause," repeated Marjory, wondering.
"You know we were around there yesterday in our walk, and as I was tired I decided not to come back to my home with Clyde."

"I thought I could slip up to my room and no one would know I was in the house. She happened to see me come in and I suppose she was more angry at me than ever, because I have kept out of her way all these weeks."

"At any rate she behaved as if she were angry at me. Oh it was terrible!" Mollie put her hands before her face and sighed.

"No one," begged Marjory.
"While she was saying unkind things to me, Father Jaynes happened in."

"Good!" exclaimed Marjory.
"Neither of us heard him till he was in the room and spoke her name. My, I should hate to have anyone speak my name in the time being. We were supposed as if we had been shot. Then he started out his arms and I ran to cover. Dear, good Father!"

"He is a good man. Now this thing will stop I can well believe," Marjory said, kissing her friend.

"He smoothed and quieted me and I went to my room. I had not been there long before I heard him out on the porch and say, 'May we come in?' Then Mrs. Jaynes was crying. She stepped inside the door and began to apologize."

"Well, he's the stuff!" applauded Marjory. "What did she say?"
"She asked me to forgive her for being cruel. She said it was because she was so unhappy over losing Clyde."

"Marjory smiled. Just what I said. She is jealous. I have heard that the son is the only one of her children whom she ever showed any love for."

"Julie has said, I think Augusta is not very lovable. She and her mother do not get along together very well. Clyde is so sweet, and so well natured that anybody must love him."

"Marjory tried not to smile at this wifely tribute.
"He has not failed as long as she feels that way about him, she thought. 'What would become of us if our fathers and mothers did not idealize us?'"

"So I hope to be able to be undisturbed for the rest of the time I must stay there," continued Mollie. "Poor woman, she has to live for her reality. What has she to live for?"
"Who, Mrs. Jaynes?"
"Yes. She is not respected by anyone, not even her own husband and children."

"She is so horribly ignorant. There is no use of anyone's being quite so dense even if she has had no early opportunities," Marjory proudly had no high regard for the woman.

"It is not that. I know an ignorant woman at home. She did our washing. I loved her, she was so sweet and kind. It is not her ignorance that is the secret of her unpopularity. It is her lack of character. There is nothing to her. It takes love to attract love," said Mollie sagely.

"I think you are right," mused Marjory. "It is experience that enriches us and she has never learned anything from life."

"In a sense everything has come her way. Her husband has prospered and she has had everything that money could buy. There are plenty of people who will court a rich woman for what they can get out of her. As long as she goes to work in the morning he is generous with her money. As long as she is contented and she has never felt the lack of so-called friends. Things take the place of ideas with her," continued Marjory.

ANNOYING SYMPTOMS

How Heat Flashes, Dizzy Spells and other Bad Feelings at Change of Life may be Relieved.

Richmond, Va.—"After taking seven bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I feel like a new woman. I always had a headache during the Change of Life and was also troubled with other bad feelings common at that time—dizzy spells, nervous feelings and heat flashes. Now I am in better health than I ever was and recommend your remedies to all my friends."—Mrs. LENA WYNN, 2312 E. O Street, Richmond, Va.

While Change of Life is a most critical period of a woman's existence, the annoying symptoms which accompany it may be controlled, and normal health restored by the timely use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

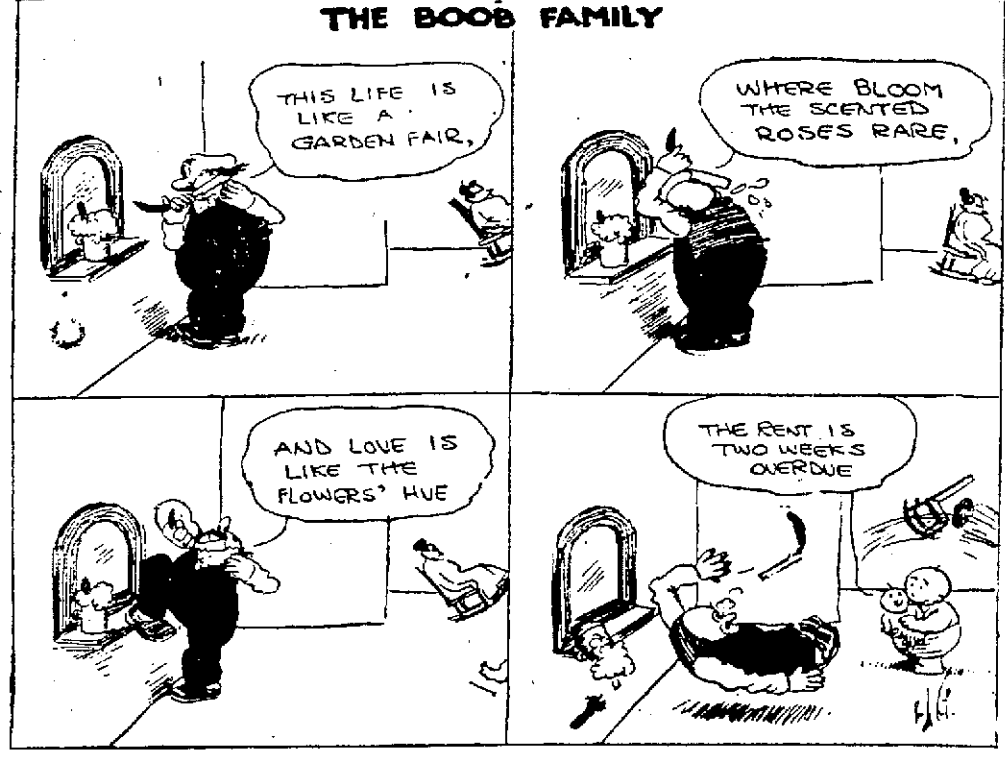

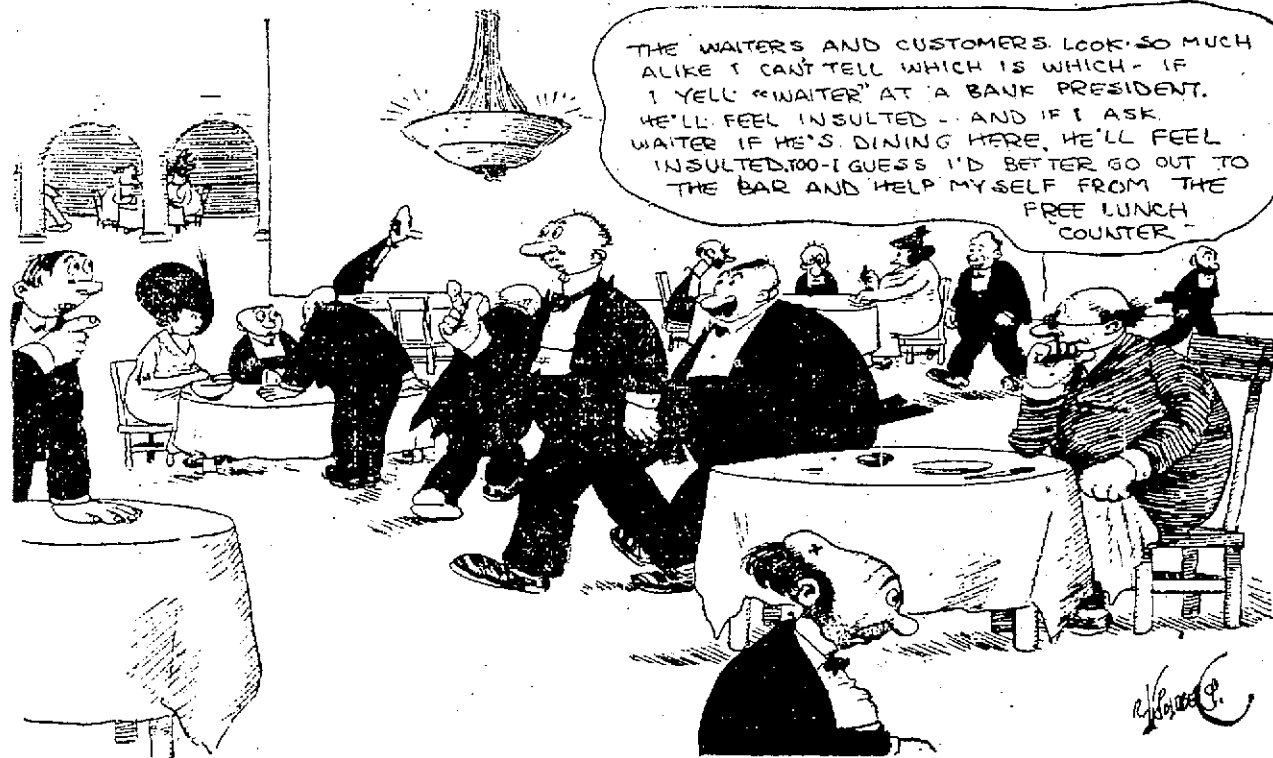

Such warning symptoms are a sense of suffocation, hot flashes, headaches, backaches, dread of impending evil, timidity, sounds in the ears, palpitation of the heart, sparks before the eyes, irregularities, constipation, variable appetite, weakness and dizziness.

HEART OF THE SUNSET

All that afternoon the cowboys labored, and toward sundown the depleted herd was driven to the water. Then through the cool twilight came the drive to the next pasture, and here the patience of the cowboys was taxed to the utmost, for as the stronger members of the herd forged ahead, the weaker, worried, little members fell behind. But now these swarthy, daredevil riders were as gentle as women; they urged the tiny youngsters onward with barless switches or with palms blows from loose-collared shirts; they picked them up in their arms and rode with them.

Once through the gate and safe inside the restraining pasture fence, the herd was allowed to settle down. Then began a patient search by outraged mothers, a series of mournful quests that were destined to continue far into the night; endless nosings and sniffings and caressings, which would keep up until each cow had found her own, until each calf was butting its head against maternal ribs and gaining that consolation which it craved.

A new moon was swinging in the sky as Alaire and Dave rode back toward Las Palmas. How or when Alaire Austin came to feel that this man loved her, she never knew. Certainly she knew tonight, and strange to say, the knowledge did not disturb her. Alaire had been repelled by Luis Longoria's evident love for her, but a similar emotion in this man's breast had quite the opposite effect. She was eager for friendship, hungry for affection, starved for that worship which every woman lives upon. Having a wholesome confidence in her own strength of character, and complete faith in Law's sense of honor, she was neither alarmed nor offended.

For the first time in years she allowed her intimate thoughts free expression and spoke of her hopes, her interests and her efforts; under the spell of the moonlight, she even confided something about those dreams that kept her company and robbed her world of its serenity. Dave Law discovered that she lived in a fanciful land of unrealities, and the glimpse he gained of it was delightful.

Supper was waiting when they arrived at Las Palmas, and Dolores announced that "Young Ed" had telephoned from the Lewis ranch that he would not be home. Yielding to a sudden impulse, Alaire said to her companion:

"You must dine with me. Dolores will show you to a room. I will be ready in half an hour."

The Austin ranchhouse offered a contrast to the majority of Texas country homes. Not for many years had Dave Law been a guest amid such surroundings, and he began to feel more and more out of place. With growing discomfort, he realized that the mistress of this residence was the richest woman in all this part of Texas, and that he was little better than a tramp. Alaire knew how to be a gracious and winning hostess; of course she did not appear to notice her guest's embarrassment. She had rather welcomed the thought that this man cared for her, and yet, had she deliberately planned to dampen his feeling, she could hardly have succeeded better than by showing him the wide disparity in their lives and situations. Dave was dismayed; he felt very poor and ridiculous. Alaire was no longer the woman he had ridden with through the solitudes; her very friendliness seemed to be a condescension.

He did not linger long after they had dined for he wished to be alone, where he could reach an understanding with himself. On the steps he waited just a moment for Alaire to mention, if she chose that subject which they had still left open on the night before. Reading his thought, she said:

"You are expecting me to say something about Paulito Sanchez."

"I have thought it over; in fact, I have been thinking about it all day; but even yet I don't know what to tell you. As for its effect upon myself—you know I care very little what people say or think."

"I'm Sorry I Killed the Fellow."

"I'm sorry I killed the fellow—I shouldn't have done it, but—one sees things differently out in the rough and here in the settled country. I can't help but feel that his conduct, under the circumstances, called for—what he got. He wasn't a good man, in spite of what Jose says; and he confessed to me that they were planning all sorts of devilry together."

"That is hardly an excuse," Alaire smiled faintly.

"Oh, I know," Dave agreed. "Don't weaken on my account."

"No! I'm not thinking of the consequences to you or to me. You are the kind of man who can protect himself, I'm sure; your very ability in that direction frightens me a little on Jose's account. But"—she sighed and lifted her shoulders in a shrug—"perhaps time will decide this question for us."

Dave laughed with some relief. "I think you've worried yourself enough over it, my dear," he said; "splitting hairs as to what's right and what's wrong, when it doesn't matter much, in either case. Suppose you continue to think it over at your leisure."

"Perhaps I'd better. And now"—Alaire extended her hand—"won't you and Montrosia come to see me once in a while? I'm very lonesome."

"We'd love to," Dave declared. He had it on his lips to say more, but at that moment an eager whinny and an impatient rattle of a bridle bit came from the driveway, and he smiled.

"There's her acceptance now."

"Oh, no! She merely heard your voice, the little creature."

Alaire watched her guest until he had disappeared into the shadows, then she heard him talking to the mare. Benito's words at the rodeo occurred to her, and she wondered if this Ranger might not also have a way with women.

The house was very still and empty when she re-entered it.

CHAPTER XII.

The Guzman Incident.

Ricardo Guzman did not return from Romero. The man had disappeared, it seemed, completely and mysteriously. At first the facts appeared plain: a citizen of the United States had been lured across the border and done to death by Mexican soldiers—for it soon became evident that Ricardo was dead. The outrage was a case of bulli such as no self-respecting people could ignore; so ran the popular verdict. The ominous mailed serpent which lay along the Rio Grande stirred itself.

Of course, the people of Texas were delighted that the long-delayed hour had struck; accordingly, when the state department manifested its willingness to allow Don Ricardo ample time in which to come to life in preference to putting a further strain upon international relations, they were both surprised and enraged. Telegraph wires began to buzz; the governor of the state sent a sarcastic message to the national capital, offering to dispatch a company of Rangers after Guzman's body, just to prove that he was indeed dead, and that the Mexican authorities were lying when they professed ignorance of the fact.

This offer not only caught the popular fancy north of the Rio Grande, but it likewise had an effect on the other side of the river, for on the very next day General Luis Longoria set out for Romero to investigate personally the rancher's disappearance.

Now, throughout all this public clamor, truth, as usual, lay hidden at the bottom of its well, and few even of Ricardo's closest friends suspected the real reason for his murder.

Jonesville, of course, could think or talk of little else than this outrage, and Blaze Jones, as befitted its leading citizen, was loudest in his criticism of the government's policy. Blaze's conception of diplomacy was peculiar. "If Potosi didn't talk straight that consul oughta beat a gun bar' over the old ruffian's bean and telephoned for a couple hundred battleships. We Americans are cursed with notions of brotherly love and universal peace. Bah! We're bound to have war, Dave, some day or other."

Dave nodded his agreement. "Yes. But—everybody has the wrong idea of this Guzman killing. The federal officers in Romero didn't frame it up."

"No? Who did?"

"Tad Lewis."

Jones started. "What makes you think that?"

"Listen! Tad was afraid to let Urbina come to trial. Ricardo's dead and the other witness is gone. Now draw your own conclusions."

Jones was amazed. "Say, Dave," he cried, "that means your case has blown up, eh?"

"Absolutely. Lewis has been selling 'wet' stock to the federals, and he probably arranged with some of them to murder Ricardo."

Blaze cursed eloquently. "I'd like to hang it onto Tad; I'd sure clean house down his way if I was positive."

"I sent a man over to Romero," Dave explained further. "He tells me Ricardo is dead, all right. There's a new grave in the little cemetery above the town, but there hasn't been a death in Romero lately." The speaker watched his friend closely. "If we had Ricardo's body on this side it would put an end to all the lies, and perhaps force Colonel Blanco to make known the real facts. It might even mean a case against Tad Lewis."

"What'd you say we go over there and get Ricardo?"

Dave smiled. "That's what I've been leading up to. Will you take a chance?"

"Yes."

"I knew you would. All we need is a pair of Mexicans to do the work. I liked Ricardo; I owe him something."

"Suppose we're caught?"

"In that case we'll have to run for it, and I presume I'll be discharged from the Ranger service."

"I ain't very good at runnin'—not from Mexicans," Blaze's eyes were

Why We Have Tired, Worn-out Nerves and Thin Blood in the Springtime.
(By Dr. S. W. Bower.)

At this time of the year most people suffer from a condition often called Spring Fever. They feel tired, worn out, before the day is half told, and have frequent headaches and sometimes "pimples" or pale skin and white lips. The reason for this is that during the winter time, shut up within doors, eating too much meat and too little green vegetables, one heaps fuel into the system which is not burned up and the clinkers remain to poison the system—a clogging up of the circulation, with inactive liver and kidneys.

The best means to oil the machinery of the body, put new life into the liver, kidneys and circulatory system, is to first practice a good house-cleaning. I know of nothing better as a purge than a vegetable pill made up of May apple, leaves of aloe and jalap. This is commonly sold by all druggists as Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, and should be taken at least once a week to clear the twenty-five feet of intestines.

For an invigorating tonic which will clarify the blood, put new life in the body, sparkle to the eyes, and a wholesome skin, nothing does so well as a glyceric herb extract made from Golden Seal root, Blood and Stone root, Oregon grape root and Wild cherry bark. This can be had in convenient, ready-to-use form at all drug stores, in tablets or liquid, and has been sold for the past fifty years as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. By reason of the nerves feeding on the blood, when the blood is pure the nerves feel the effect, and neuralgia or other nerve pains disappear because such pain is the cry of the starved nerves for food.

bright and hard at the thought. "It's more'n possible that, if they discover us, we can start a nice little war of our own."

That evening Dave managed to get his Ranger captain by long-distance telephone, and for some time the two talked guardedly. When Dave rang off they had come to a thorough understanding.

It had been an easy matter for Jose Sanchez to secure a leave of absence from Benito, but Alaire knew nothing whatever about the matter until Jose himself asked permission to see her on a matter of importance.

The man had ridden hard most of the previous night, and his excitement was patent. Even before he spoke, Alaire realized that Paulito's fate was known to him, and she decided swiftly that there must be no further concealment.

"Senora! A terrible thing!" Jose burst forth. "It is strange, unbelievable! My head whirled."

Alaire quieted him, saying in Spanish. "Calm yourself, Jose, and tell me everything from the beginning."

"But how can I be calm? Paulito is completely dead. But—you know?"

Alaire nodded. "I suspected."

RACINE SAILOR CLIMBS TO MAKE OLD GLORY FLY.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Racine, March 9.—Philip Racine, a sailor, saved the honor of the flag recently. Flag raising ceremonies were being held at the courthouse, and everything went well until an attempt to raise the flag on the court house pole, resulted in breaking the worn-out rope. Racine climbed to the top of the 60-foot pole, while hundreds looked on, to attach a new rope. Going up hand-over-hand, a cold north wind caused him to be seized with cramps when near the top, necessitating a second trip to the top, after he was forced to descend. He negotiated it successfully the second time, in two minutes. He is 40 years old.

There is But One Interpretation to Equality

—and this interpretation of equal rights to all was the thought and purpose in the minds of our country's founders when they wrote the phrase into the Constitution of the United States.

The law holds each man's property as sacredly his own. To help yourself to that which belongs to another, without his consent, is stealing. For a Government or State to do this without compensation is confiscation. To do this is as illegal under the Constitution as stealing is under the common law.

Both cases offer examples of equality.

The Government may declare its need of your property in the courts—you can demand that a jury of your peers fix the amount of compensation, should that voluntarily offered you be unsatisfactory. If it were otherwise, the act of the Government or State would be an act of confiscation—which is strictly forbidden under the Constitution which grants equality to all.

The principle and the right of compensation is universally upheld everywhere, with one exception.

Is it fair and just that this right should be extended to other individuals and corporations—and denied to one industry?

The one industry which has not the right to even ask for compensation in case of injury by an act of legislature is the Brewing Industry and its allied interests.

The Compensation Bill now before the Wisconsin State Legislature is designed to remedy this discrepancy. The proposed bill does nothing more than extend justice and equality to all.

Be Careful in Using Soap on Your Hair

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle. The best thing to use is just plain mullein seed oil, for it is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats the most expensive soaps or anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

Piles Dissolved In Ten Minutes

Mild, safe treatment. No pain or danger; positive relief assured in all cases (except cancer) no matter how many other salves, ointments or doctors have failed. Particulars free in plain, sealed envelope. Just clip this out and mail to Dr. F. T. Riley, 429 N. & N. Bank Bldg., Milwaukee, Wis.

Emergency Prayer

By REV. B. B. SUTCLIFFE
Assistant Superintendent of Men,
Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

TEXT—So I prayed to the God of heaven and I said unto the King—Neh. 2:4, 5.

We are continually meeting emergencies when quick decisions must be made, when we must speak or act on "the spur of the moment." The Christian who would meet emergencies wisely would do well to study how Nehemiah used what might be termed emergency prayer.

It was unspoken by the lips and as far as we know, it was not formed in words. He had suddenly been asked a question by the king and he must answer at once. Upon his answer depended the fulfillment of his hopes, the realization of his desires and the banishment of his sorrow. Everything depended upon the way in which he met this emergency. How easily and wisely he met it he tells us in the text, "I prayed to the God of heaven and I said unto the King."

Character of Prayer.
It was necessarily a short prayer and a very definite prayer. He had no time to "beat round the bush," he must come to the point at once. It was very sudden, for emergencies do not allow time for preparation; but they are never too sudden for God. We will never find and unprepared for our emergencies. He is always there before they arrive. He says for our comfort: "Before they call I will answer." The writer received a telegram in Chicago one morning at 9:25 which had been sent from Pittsburgh at 9:30 the same morning. He received it before it was sent because of the difference in central and eastern time. God hears our prayers before we utter them and no emergency can ever arise so suddenly that it finds God unprepared. Or what unspeakable value if every time an emergency arose we could have at once the wisdom of omniscience to guide us? What confidence and assurance we would enjoy knowing just the right way to act and the right word to say in all our emergencies?

Circumstances of Prayer.
They were not conducive to prayer. A banquet was in progress at a beauteous court and Nehemiah was in the midst as the cup bearer. The world's festivities are not calculated to arouse a prayerful spirit nor are they suggestive of prayer. The gaily and laughter, the jest and song, the whole atmosphere of amusement in which Nehemiah found himself would not be conducive to prayer. Nor did the circumstances permit of his retiring alone and privately shutting himself away from such surroundings. But here in the midst of the noise surrounding the worldly world he could pray. We sometimes think that we could pray if we could only get alone and quiet away from the noise and the rush of people. But the value of emergency prayer is to be able to have the ear of God and to hear the voice of God in the midst of any circumstances. No emergency, however suddenly it may arise nor however thronged the surroundings may be, need find us shut out from the Lord.

Conditions of Prayer.
First of all, Nehemiah was a man of habitual prayer. He was in the habit of taking everything to God. When he heard the distressing news of the condition of his beloved city, he prayed. When his enemies would stop his work, he prayed. When they plotted and schemed against his life, he prayed. In the second place, Nehemiah was in the habit of listening to God in his Word. He could remind God of his promises, as his prayer in the first chapter reveals. It is necessary to speak to God, it is perhaps more necessary to allow God to speak to us. He has said "He that turneth away his ear from hearing the law, even his prayer shall be an abomination." If we close our ears to him he will close his ears to us. He who has God's ears for any sudden emergency is the man whose ear is to the Book. In the third place, he was a man of faith, as the last two verses of the first chapter of his book show. He believed God was what he was and would do what he said, and this gave him quietness and peace at all times. He was habitually prepared for any emergency. Can this be said of us? Is it not true that we move with uncertainty and speak with hesitancy when sudden emergencies arise? Are we not often distressed in mind after a sudden decision has had to be made last we have decided wrongly? What confidence and assurance what quietness and rest we would enjoy in the face of those emergencies so frequently met if we had the enjoyment of emergency prayer. It does not need any spoken words, it does not depend on conducive circumstances. It does not demand an outward privacy, but can be used when there is not time even to form the words of the shortest prayer in the midst of the busiest activity or in the heart of the thronging crowd.

JESUS THE BREAD OF LIFE.

A number of the most enthusiastic of the miraculously-fed multitude bivouacked on the scene, hoping to find the wonder-worker there when a day should break. Disappointed in this, they took boats across the lake, reversing the order of the day before, and expecting to outstrip Jesus if he had come around the head of Galilee afoot. What was their amazement to find he had already been some time in Capernaum. They suspect supernatural means, and hint it in their question. Jesus does not, however, satisfy their curiosity. That walking on the sea was one of the few esoteric miracles designed to comfort the apostles, on whom a fiercer storm would soon beat in the Master's absence. * * * Jesus dug the grave of his popularity that day. These ardent Chillyasts had the purple in hiding for his shoulders. To their fond eyes the long-expected star had risen out of Jacob, and a mighty acceptance had been lifted in Israel that should break in pieces the dynasty of the diademean usurper. A word, a look, a beck, and the Nazarene would have been declared king. The choice for Jesus was between a diadem and a crown of thorns. * * * In a single word Jesus revealed the essential wrong basis of this enthusiasm. He was a man, and a materialist, a sensual illusion, and dangerous in the extreme; diametrically-opposed to the spirit of the kingdom he had come to set up. He had not come to gratify their political ambitions, to distribute offices and emoluments among them, or feed them at the insatiable crib of a golden Solomonic throne. He had come to set up the kingdom; pictured himself as the almoner of that substance upon which an immortal life could maintain itself, a steward wearing openly the easily legible seal of his supernatural office. The sum and substance of it all was, that they should see and receive life in his spiritual function to their souls. * * * See the inveterate obtuseness of the natural mind. Jesus had poured miracles like a cascade of pearls from the golden urn of his omnipotence; yet, as if the past twenty-four months had been a blank, with unparalleled obliquity, they ask now for a sign. The holy man, who had fed them on the day before, but they minify the feast by comparison. He had given them one meal, and that, too, only of barley bread, whereas Moses had fed their fathers forty years on manna. * * * Jesus avails himself of their unmannerly allusion to outline the holy mystery of the atonement. "Who enough, your fathers had manna to eat; but, in spite of that they died. There is a Bread whereof, if a man eat, it will nourish him to immortal life. I am that Bread—the Father's gift to a famished world; yet, like the loaf, I too, must be broken in the suffering of my cross, before men can take me into their souls, through faith and with thanksgiving as thoroughly as the eater does the bread he consumes." * * *

The flood-tide suddenly ebbed, and Jesus with the twelve, was left stranded upon the shore. The sensually curious, the lusters after marvels and leaves and fishes, the first-century Sin-Finners, who hoped to use the Nazarene for the overthrow of Herod and Rome, all found nothing in him to suit their purpose, and were offended at this, to them, hard and dark sayings—now became his open and implacable foes. There was a great withdrawal, too, of those who, under the spell of false impressions, had joined themselves to the new Rabbi. That day's sermon had broken the spell, and the secession was immediate and immense. * * * The shadow of the cross was more plainly than ever outlined on Jesus' pathway that day. He spoke then, for the first time, of the traitor, and the loneliness of his heart finds vent in his pathetic "Will ye also go away?"

THE TEACHER'S LANTERN.
Jesus selects the common, indispensable things as emblems of his function to the human soul—light, water, bread. Jesus is not merely very desirable, he is an absolute necessity. Without him we not merely suffer loss, we are ourselves lost. As well expect physical life without light, water, and bread, as soul-life without Him who says, "I am the light." "Come unto me and drink." "I am the bread." * * * All that Jesus would demand is that the proportion be maintained between the material and spiritual; that the strength of our exertion bear some ratio to the worth of the thing sought. In comparison with the intensity with which we toil for the present that endureth, we should appear next to labor at all for that which periseth. * * * There must be a personal acceptance, individual appropriation of Jesus. As well expect to have hunger appeased by looking at a loaf of bread, or thirst slacked by gazing at a glass of water, as to be nourished in our souls without taking Christ into them. * * * Moses did not give the bread of the wilderness; God gave both it and the living bread. The latter is vastly superior. Those who ate manna were a small company comparatively; they ate it only forty days, and then, in spite of all, died. Here is Bread of which the thousand millions of which the caravan can eat for forty centuries; and not one of them dies; but all live forever.

SPREADING THE GOOD NEWS.

(Personal Evangelism.)

"Someone touched me on the shoulder." It was John B. Gough who said that. He was in abject misery and despondency, on the crumbling brink of destruction. There was the electric thrill of human sympathy in that touch although it was only the finger of an obscure waiter in a cheap restaurant. It was that which turned the hopeless inebriate back from the grave of a suicide to the career of the fervent temperance reformer of his age. That impress of sympathy multiplied itself a thousand fold. Wherever the gospel of personal evangelism is preached, this which Joel Stratton did should be mentioned. It is not only due his memory, but it is a concrete and striking example of what evangelism consists in, its spirit, method and results.

LANDRITH TO TALK AT MILTON COLLEGE

Milton, Wis., March 9.—On Monday night, March 19th, at the college gymnasium, the students of Milton College are furnishing the people of the surrounding country and towns the greatest treat of the year. At that time Dr. Fred Landrith, one of America's great men and greatest speakers, will lecture on "The Challenge of the National Prohibition Movement to the People of Today."

Dr. Landrith was one of the fifteen members of the "Flying Squadron of America" who toured 255 cities, including every large city, state capital, the national capital and large university centers of the country—perhaps the greatest speaking tour ever conducted in the United States. This flying squadron went all its efforts toward the breaking of the liquor traffic. Dr. Landrith is ranked along with Wm. J. Bryan as a speaker, and by some is considered as a speaker superior. He was the candidate for the vice presidency on the prohibition ticket at the last election.

Following is what the National Lincoln Bicentennial says of Dr. Landrith: "Few men combine so many qualities requisite to the able platform speaker. Of fine physique, an exceedingly pleasing voice, a clear, logical, and vivid imagination, a cheerful temperament, a happy outlook on life and an acute appreciation of humor and wit, he possesses with the happy faculty of adapting himself in an instant to any audience, swaying it with his will."

The W. V. I. club met yesterday afternoon, the topic was "Our National Parks" with the following papers: "The Crater Lake," Mrs. A. L. Burdick; "The Mesa Verde Park," Mrs. J. M. Wood; "The Glacier," Mrs. H. A. Wood; "The Rocky Mountains," Mrs. E. D. Bliss. Music was furnished by Goldie Davis, violinist, with Phyllis Campbell as accompanist.

H. C. Stewart of Albion visited his son Howard and family Wednesday. Milton College basketball tournament Tuesday and Wednesday. Good games, hotly contested.

The children of Deacon H. F. Crandall gave him a birthday surprise party Sunday evening in honor of his seventieth birthday. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Harry Crandall and daughter, Miss Mildred; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Crandall and daughter Cleone; Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Coon, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Crandall and little daughter, and Mrs. Maudie Hurley and children. An excellent supper was served by the guests and all enjoyed the social evening together.

FORMER CONGRESSMAN HEADS ISLAND ROAD

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Manila, March 9.—Eugene E. Reed, former congressman from New Hampshire, and one of the Democratic leaders of that state, has been named as president of the Manila Railroad company, transfer of which from the stockholders to the Philippine government was completed recently. Mr. Reed thus steps from the Philippine commission where he had held the post of secretary of commerce and police until the reorganization of the executive departments of the government finally abolished that body, to be the first head of the railroad system under government control.

This appointment came immediately after the cable announcement that the money gained from an issue of $4,000,000 worth of Philippine government bonds, purchased in October of last year by the National City Company, had been paid over to the stockholders of the old Manila Railroad Company by Clyde A. De Witt, former public utility commissioner in the Philippines, who has spent the better part of a year in the United States, arranging the transfer of the road under government control, consists of Manuel Quezon, president of the senate; E. J. Westhouse, director of the bureau of public works; Francisco Ortiga, director of the insular code committee which is in charge of a complete codification of Philippine laws; Felipe Caballero, president of the only Philippine fire insurance company; Dr. A. P. Fitzsimmons, insular treasurer; Alejandro Ruiz, representative in the house, and a big power in the Nationalista party, the dominant political faction of the islands; J. J. Rafferty, insular collector of internal revenue, and Jose Fernandez, member of a prominent local firm. There are thus, including the president, four Americans and five Filipinos on the board of directors.

Loomis F. Goodale, an American of many years experience in the insular government, one time supervising railway expert and later expert advisor to the public utility commission, has been named as assistant to the president.

What It Costs To Use

BLAU-GAS

Records kept over a period of 42 months show that it cost only an average of $1 per month to operate an equipment consisting of 1 gas range, 26 gas lights and 1 gas flat iron. It's really cheaper than city gas.

Blau-Gas is for use in Country Homes; takes the place of city gas; perfectly safe and non-explosive. Write, phone or call for further information.

NEW YORK TO PAY

HIGH MILK PRICES

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]

New York, March 9.—The food situation today showed two new factors, both pending to raise prices. The dairymen's league, which virtually controls the sources of supply for this city and vicinity within a radius of several hundred miles, announced a schedule for six months beginning April 1 which averages one and a half cents a quart more than the corresponding months of last year. Further freight congestion was threatened by a strike of freight handlers of the New York Central railroad.

BLUE FIVE OFF TODAY TO WHITEWATER GAME

Coach Keck and Nine Men Left This Morning to Participate in District Basketball Meet.

Janesville high school's basketball squad, nine strong, left this morning for Whitewater to compete in the southern division tournament of the state normal school basketball championship. Coach Keck made up the tenth member of the party.

All members of the team were in high spirits and steamed with a determination to make a showing for themselves in the games. When they were met today was unknown when the team departed.

Reports arriving at the high school previous to the morning session were that in the preliminary games last night Whitewater had eliminated Beloit and that Edgerton had won from Delavan. The home town team just needed only their Lake City opponents, the score being 12 to 10.

Edgerton had a comparatively easy time with Delavan, winning 25 to 12. Edgerton and Madison are picked as the possible fives to play off in the finals.

As it looked previous to the opening of the tournament and even up to today, it seems that the dope will not be upset. Basketball critics do not look upon any of the seven teams entered as being of the "dark horse" caliber.

The Janesville players who made the trip this morning were Kenning, Robert, Cuddeback, Daves, Morris, Baker, Sprackling and Peira.

CO. E (OSWEGO) WINS FIRST GAME, 24-17

Mitchell and Knapp Only Regulars to Play in First Game With Fond du Lac—Others in Tonight.

Mitchell and Knapp, bolstered by three Madison pickups, the team playing under the name of the Janesville Lakota Club Cardinals, were defeated 24 to 17 by the Company E (Oswego) basketball five at Fond du Lac last night.

A second game, with Company E will be played tonight. Manager Caldwell did not make the trip with the team. This morning he stated that Miller and Atwood would be in the lineup tonight. If this is the case then the score announced tomorrow should be somewhat different than that sent broadcast today.

The Cardinals earlier in the season, with all regulars in the lineup, easily defeated the Oswego five, the same bunch which the other seven team met and were defeated by last night. At that time the regular Cardinals could have beaten the easterners on any floor in the country.

Tomorrow night the first tussles of the series with Stoughton is scheduled to be played.

PLAY FIRST ROUND OF THE WHITEWATER HIGH SCHOOL MEET

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Whitewater, March 9.—The high school basketball tournament opened at the annual gym last evening and four games were played. Whitewater and Beloit opened the meet with a thrilling contest. The first half ended 7 to 0 in favor of Beloit, but the local team came back and made 12 points in the second half, while Beloit made three, and Whitewater won 12 to 10. Van Duser for the local played a wonderful game, making ten of the twelve points. In the second contest Edgerton beat Delavan 21 to 10.

Madison won from Brodhead 26 to 20, and Evansville and Cambridgeport until the final whistle with the former winning 14 to 13.

The games today will be between the losers and start this morning at 9:30. There will be another contest at 2:30 and one this evening at 7:30. The games are drawing a good attendance and as the locals are still fighting, much interest is being taken in the tournament.

Miss Leota Braten was home from Walworth Saturday and Sunday. She had as her guest Miss Adelaide Miller, who also remained in Walworth.

Paul Wenzel left Wednesday for Milwaukee, where he will work for John Bonnett this summer.

Central League Meeting. George Germaine, Ed. Wain and Frank Reider were at Port Atkinson Tuesday to attend a meeting of the Central League. Delegations were present from Watertown, Madison, Whitewater and Port Atkinson and all the old officers of the league were re-elected except the treasurer, which office has not been filled. It was decided that each team must have three regular players on it and there is a salary limit of $100 per game. Applications from Janesville and Waukesha have been received to enter the league and are being considered.

Miss Marie Callahan visited Miss Alice Keefe at Elkhorn a few days this week. Invitations are out for the marriage of Miss Germaine, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Leland of this city, and Edmond Chapman of Lake Geneva on March 17.

—MORRIS MILLER—

Although it was predicted freely at the end of the season that there would be a general reduction in the salaries of the baseball players, this dream of the club owners has not come true. The holdouts this season have been more or less successful, with the exceptions of the Brooklyn and Boston players, who probably will be forced to receive cuts in their pay. The signing of Grover Alexander, the Philadelphia pitcher, for $12,500 is an example of how the club owners will pay well for a star player whether they want to or not.

There is no doubt that last season was the most costly in the history of the sixteen major league clubs paid out about $1,900,000 in salaries to players. They have tried hard to reduce this heavy expense, but in dickering with club owners over salaries the players have a decided advantage, for good ball players are not to be found on every bush.

One of the highest priced teams last season was the Giants, and it will cost just as much to keep the New York club intact, this season. New York's salary list last season was in the neighborhood of $120,000, not including McGraw's salary. It is estimated that Brooklyn paid $95,000 in salaries, according to President Wegmanman the Cubs' payroll was more than $140,000. The Braves received $95,000 and the Phillies drew down about $85,000 in salaries. Barney Dreyfuss, one of the most expensive clubs in the history of Pittsburgh baseball, and he is said to have paid out more than $95,000 in salaries. The St. Louis Cardinals paid out something like $75,000.

In the American league the salary lists were even higher. The Yankees cost the owners $125,000 in salaries, and the Red Sox payroll amounted to about $115,000. Owner Charles Comiskey's White Sox cost $130,000. Detroit's team was paid about $100,000, and the Cleveland Indians, with Tris Speaker's high salary, were paid $95,000. The Boston Red Sox salary list amounted to $80,000, and the salary list of the St. Louis Browns footed up to $90,000. Connie Mack's club was the cheapest in either league and his salary list did not amount to more than $40,000.

There has been no cut in salary for any of the star players this season. The Yankees' salary list increased the number of holdouts. The Giants suffered not out in salaries, neither did the Yankees. The White Sox will cost just as much as last season, and although the new owners of the Red Sox have made an effort to reduce salaries it has not been altogether successful.

Just as many high salaries will be paid during the coming season as were paid during the Federal league war. In spite of the high cost of the game last season it is expected that the players are not inclined to stand cuts with the price of living going up all the time. It is stated that Manager John McGraw's Giants receive a salary of $30,000 a year, while George Stallings gets $20,000 for piloting the Braves. Ty Cobb draws down $20,000 from the Detroit Tigers, and Alex. Meigs gets $20,000 from the same club. Clark Griffith, the Washington manager, and Hugh Jennings, manager at Detroit, each get more than $10,000 a year.

Charles Herzog gets $8,000 from the St. Louis Cardinals, and the Philadelphia Phillies. Tris Speaker gets $15,000 from Cleveland and Walter Johnson $12,500 from Washington. Frank Baker gets more than $9,000 from the Detroit Tigers, and the Philadelphia Phillies. The same amount from the White Sox. Eddie Collins receives $5,000 and Walter Marvill draws $10,000 from the Braves.

The Brooklyn club is the only organization in the major leagues which has made a wholesale cut of players' salaries, and there are now only two players who have been signed. These include some of the club's best players. President Ebbets has repeatedly stated that he will not pay the players a cent more than the amount stipulated in their original contracts.

How Vessels Touch Bottom. Vessels often touch bottom in harbors where there is apparently water enough to float them with several feet to spare. The government some time ago made experiments touching this matter, and its report says that suction makes all vessels "squat" and more so in shallow water than in deep. This suction makes all the way from a few inches to three feet difference in the draft of the vessel. It must be taken into account in dredging harbors.

Styles in Fat Ladies. Fat ladies are still quite popular and take up a lot of space in the public eye. By their waist lines ye shall know them. Fat ladies come in all sizes, young and old, rich and poor. A pleasant variety is the fat lady who declares that she doesn't believe in dieting, as it interferes with one's health. Romantic fat ladies continue to be en vogue in all select circles. Making love to them is usually attended by large returns.—Life.

BRAY BILLS AFFECT CITY OWNED PLANTS

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., March 9.—Several bills of importance to municipalities and public utility plants have been offered in the upper house by Senator William Bray of Oshkosh. One measure provides that any municipality having acquired a certificate to operate a municipal plant may contract with any public utility for a division of their service for a period not exceeding twenty years.

Another bill by Senator Bray on this subject provides that any municipality owning a plant for the distribution of heat, light, water or power may sell the same, if a majority of the electors in such municipality vote at a general election to sell the enterprise. The bill provides the legal machinery for getting the question before the people.

A third bill by Senator Bray provides that where a municipality has voted to purchase a municipal plant before the actual purchase takes place it may recant. The measure provides that all proceedings may be discontinued any time prior to the final determination of compensation by the railroad commission by a resolution to that effect, by its common council or town board, provided that such resolution shall not be of force or effect until thirty days after the passage or publication of such a resolution. It is provided that if within this thirty-day period a petition shall be filed with the clerk of such municipality signed by ten percent of the electors, then the question of discontinuing the proceedings shall be submitted to a vote of the people not earlier than thirty days from the filing of the petition.

The question has arisen here as to whether such a law would affect the valuation and purchase of municipal plants now being valued by the railroad commission.

ITALIANS STUDYING TO PASS U. S. TEST

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Rome, March 9.—The literary test clause of the United States immigration laws, which is to take effect May 1, has already resulted in the stimulation of the study of English among Italians who expect to emigrate to America when the war is over.

In the Italian immigration commissioner of emigration there will be more than enough work to be done in Europe, and at good wages when the war is over, and the government expects to do all possible to discourage emigration. However, inquiries already being made at the American consulates indicate that a large number of soldiers are considering the possibility of going to America when released from service. Reports that the United States has become immensely wealthy because of the war sales are prevalent here, and relatives of the Italians have written home from America telling of opportunities that are more certain there and urging them to come when the war is over without waiting to discover whether Europe is or is not going to recover from the setback given by the war. One of the commonest remarks which Americans in Italy hear from the Italian soldiers, or from barbers, is that they think of going to America when the war is over.

An interesting phase of immigration possibilities is the belief expressed by some quarters that many of the hitherto well-to-do Italians of the educated classes who have suffered by the war may go to America to recoup their fortunes.

While Italy furnished the largest number of emigrants to the United States before the war of any single nation, for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1914, the number being 233,738, as compared to 273,152 from Austria-Hungary, the Italian government favors Italy rather than objects to the new literary test.

When the news of the passing of the new law over President Wilson's veto was printed in Italy, the newspapers at once editorially stated that the law would have rather than injure Italy. These newspapers have two reasons for this position. One reason was that the law would force Italians to educate themselves. The second was that Italy hoped in the future to export manufactured products of labor rather than labor itself, and thereby increase the wealth of the nation.

Timely Hints

Department of Agriculture Horticulturists Outline Principles for Making a Success of the Home Vegetable Patch.

Washington, D. C., March 9.—The damage done to garden crops by the recent widespread freeze has made it necessary for many owners to replant gardens or to delay planting beyond the usual time. These gardeners whose outdoor schedules have been upset are under the necessity of doing everything they can to hasten their crops.

The following suggestions, regarding the principles and practice of gardening, the horticultural specialists of the United States department of agriculture believe, will be timely and helpful to those who are planting season naturally is later.

The gardener who merely wishes to raise vegetables for his own family should especially try to choose the crops he will grow from those which previously have done best in his special locality. The market gardener must also study the market and anticipate its usual demand and determine as far as he can how this demand will be affected by any untoward weather conditions which may have occurred in his section.

Those who desire to produce early crops should bear in mind that a warm, sandy loam heavier soil that retains more water and less heat. Frost is less apt to injure vegetables planted on high ground than those planted in low places or valleys, and while the heavy soil is commonly level, but well drained. The crop will mature more rapidly on land that has a sunny, southern exposure than in other places.

The essentials for successful gardening on a small or large scale are soil, water, and cultivation. Much depends also on the season, the season and the crops selected.

The soil is the storehouse of plant food. The garden, therefore, should contain humus or rotted material in large quantities. The gardener should remember that about fifty per cent of ordinary earth is not soil at all, but consists of air and water.

Water makes plant food that is present freely soluble. Rain and irrigation are soft and contain ammonia. The magic of soft water on the plant world is one of the miracles of good gardening, as everyone who has contrasted the effect of rain with that produced by spring water can testify.

Plants are succulent and contain large amounts of water which they have to draw from the soil.

The conservation of soil moisture is the most important principle in cultivating crops. The two other principal things accomplished by cultivation are the killing of weeds which draw moisture and plant food from the crops, and the aeration of the soil. Too much stress can not be laid on the preparation of a good seed bed. A seed bed of fine tilth—made so by deep plowing, careful harrowing, and frequent light weeding—is the foundation of good gardening. It is essential for the proper germination and growth of young plants. The soil must be friable and free from clods. A clod can hold no plant food in solution, the only form in which it is available for the plant. Good soil and fine tilth insure an excellent root system to plants. Upon the fine, hairy, fibrous, feeding roots, which are possible only in well-tilled soil, the plant depends for its sturdiness and growth. The careful gardener will regard his whole garden as a seed bed and will cultivate and fertilize it accordingly.

Fertilizers, the plant food for the garden, should be carefully selected. Nitrogen, which stimulates leaf growth, is best supplied by turning under rich vegetable or composted manure, or rotting vegetable matter. Nitrogen also is supplied in such fertilizers as nitrate of soda and sulphate of ammonia, as well as in bone meal and tankage.

Potash tends to hasten the maturity of the plant, but also has a tendency to counteract the work of nitrogen. On this account those not experienced in using potash should use it in most cases, than the muriate. On account of the disturbed commercial conditions one of the most available sources of potash is hard-wood ashes.

Plants need a balanced ration. If they are lacking in nitrogen, they show pale leaf and stunted plant form. Excess of nitrogen is shown by large, fleshy leaves.

Everyday Wisdom

By DON HEROLD

Vegetable Week—THE SQUASH.

Author's Prefatory Note.—In choosing the squash as the subject for the first of our series of articles on vegetables, this week, we do not mean to give the impression that we think the squash is the greatest vegetable. It was largely by chance that we placed it first on the list. Some vegetable had to be first. And perhaps we were led to this choice, furthermore, (unconsciously, to a great extent) because we see so many unrealized possibilities in the squash. The squash is interesting (as you shall see, if we ever get the article started.) It has potentialities as yet undreamed of by the large mass of our American public. On its surface it is dull and unpicturesque. Studied closely, and put to its full powers, it is eminently interesting. Last summer, in making a series of observations and experiments, upon which this group of discussions is based, we found the squash occupying our interest, not to the total exclusion of the other vegetables under study, it is true, but to a degree, we found it more interesting than any of the other denizens of our garden were made to take a secondary place in our heart. The squash has suffered much from neglect. It is not exactly a vegetable with charm, like the watermelon, for instance. One of its chief drawbacks has been that it cannot be plucked from the vine and eaten raw.

Article proper. THE SQUASH. For want of space, we find it necessary to postpone our treatment of the squash until tomorrow.

leaf and plant growth with imperfect fruitage. If the plants lack potash, they will not be fruitful.

Sheep manure will hurry plants along more rapidly than most chemical fertilizers.
